“Building Cohesive Project Teams”

Presented by Eric Verzuh, The Versatile Company

Projects in every field depend on technical mastery and the thorough application of the tools and techniques of project management, but at the point these projects require more than one person, they also depend on team work. Those who've experienced the productivity and power of a cohesive team also know it didn't happen by accident – but through the leadership of the project manager. This presentation will provide a vision of a high performance team and provide guidelines every project leader can follow to improve their team's performance.
